Sustainability and Community Investment

At COMO Hotels and Resorts, we act as custodians, rather than managers, of each destination. We recognise the privileges and responsibilities of being part of the community and are committed to celebrating local culture, supporting the domestic economy and minimising our impact on the environment.

At COMO Uma Ubud, we source our produce from local farmers and small-scale suppliers across Bali – not just because they often have the freshest produce, but also because these companies are committed to sustainable economic development within their communities. We purchase cashew nuts and roselle from a social enterprise which promotes sustainable livelihoods for villages in east Bali by reinvesting revenue into income-generating activities. To achieve a lasting impact in the community, we also work with schools and community partners all around Bali to provide support and career development to young, underprivileged people.

COMO Uma Ubud celebrates Balinese culture in all its forms. Each month we observe full moon celebrations, known locally as ‘Purnama’ where employees and guests can participate in the traditional ceremony and create offerings used in the Purnama rituals.
