

CORAL COCKTAILS

While you sip the creation at this beautiful sand bank, we would like to enlighten you about different corals found in the Indian Ocean. Our crafted cocktails are inspired by the coral colors so the next time you go snorkeling; you can say ‘I know this coral’.

Firedot Lichen Coral

21

Firedot lichen coral is widespread lichen, often intensely yellow-colored because of their small apothecia and bright coloration. They are known as firedot or jewel lichens. Lichens are a symbiosis of fungi and alga. Although they are very resilient, they are quite fragile, so their abundance can be used as an indicator of the health of the local environment.

Rum, freshly squeezed lemon juice, homemade turmeric honey

Montipora Setsoa Coral

21

Montipora setsoa is a diverse genus of small polyp stony corals. Provided with proper conditions, they grow quickly and display wonderful coloration. They are much harder than acropora in that they do not bleach as readily, and are more resistant to coral diseases.

Gin infused rosemary, cointreau, grape fruit juice, freshly squeezed lemon juice

The Acropora Coral

21

The acropora coral are beautiful species that will vary in coloration from solid. It is a relatively uncommon color for any hard coral and adds both variety and beauty to the reef. Acropora corals receive the majority of their nutritional requirements from photosynthesis and benefits from the addition of various types of phyto and zooplankton.

Vodka, blue curacao, strawberry, soda water

Spumosa Coral

Spumosa coral - colonies are encrusting, laminar or columnar, the tops of columns commonly having vertical or flame-shaped ridges. Encrusting colonies may have rootlets. Corallites are immersed, without papillae and are aligned vertically between ridges on columns. The coenosteum is coarse and can be seen underwater.
