Beverages

Sake Selection

Sake is a traditional Japanese alcohol made from fermented rice. Known as Nihonshu (literally "Japanese liquor") in Japan, it is the country's national beverage. Five crucial elements are involved in brewing sake, water, rice, technical skill, yeast, and land/weather. More than anything else, sake is a result of a brewing process that uses rice and lots of water. Infact, water comprises as much as 80% of the final product, so fine water and fine rice are natural, if one hopes to brew great sake. But beyond that, the technical skill needed to pull this all off lies with the toji (head brewer), the type of yeast they use, and the limitations entailed by local land and weather conditions.
